DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Restriction is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 and 372.

This application contains the following inventions or groups of inventions which are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

In accordance with 37 CFR 1.499, applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single invention to which the claims must be restricted.

Group I, claim(s) 1-18, drawn to methods for detecting genetic rearrangements.

Group II, claim(s) 19-21, drawn to nucleic acid primers and probes.

The inventions listed as Groups I and II do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, they lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: at least the methods of claims 1 and 2 of Group I have been deemed lacking in inventive step in the International Preliminary Report on Patentability over the following disclosures:

WO 90/04648 A1 (MORLEY et al) 3 May 1990

PASQUAL et al. J. Exp. Med. 196(9):1163-73, 4 November 2002

Specifically, Morley discloses amplification of human genomic DNA (pages 12-13) using primers to the T cell receptor (TCR) gene and detection using a probe (pages 8-9), but does not disclose a multiplex PCR or carrying out the elongation steps for 10 minutes. Pasqual discloses a method similar to the claimed method except that it was performed on mouse TCR genes and that the elongation steps of the PCR were 6 minutes (only the last elongation step was 10 minutes). It would have been obvious to apply the method of Pasqual to analysis of human TCR genes, and the mere difference of increasing the elongation time of the PCR from 6 minutes to 10 minutes is not deemed inventive.

This application contains claims directed to more than one species of the generic invention. These species are deemed to lack unity of invention because they are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

The species are as follows:

A1: separation on a gel (claim 8)

A2: separation in a microcapillary (claim 9)

B1: detection by Southern blot using labeled probe (claims 10, 11)

B2: detection by incorporation of labeled base or primer (claims 12, 14)

B3: detection by labeling agent during migration (claim 13)

Applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single species to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. The reply must also identify the claims readable on the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered non-responsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

The claims are deemed to correspond to the species listed above in the following manner: see above.

The following claim(s) are generic: 1-7 and 15-21.

The species listed above do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, the species lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: the only common feature between A1 and A2 is that both are techniques for separating amplified nucleic acids. The only common feature among B1, B2 and B3 is that all are techniques for detecting an amplified nucleic acid. However, Pasqual teaches gel electrophoresis and Southern blotting (page 1165, first full paragraph), so these features cannot be considered special technical features.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species or invention to be examined even though the requirement may be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention or species may be made with or without traverse. To preserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse.

Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).

The examiner has required restriction between product and process claims. Where applicant elects claims directed to the product, and the product claims are subsequently found allowable, withdrawn process claims that depend from or otherwise require all the limitations of the allowable product claim will be considered for rejoinder. All claims directed to a nonelected process invention must require all the limitations of an allowable product claim for that process invention to be rejoined.

In the event of rejoinder, the requirement for restriction between the product claims and the rejoined process claims will be withdrawn, and the rejoined process claims will be fully examined for patentability in accordance with 37 CFR 1.104. Thus, to be allowable, the rejoined claims must meet all criteria for patentability including the requirements of 35 U.S.C. 101, 102, 103 and 112. Until all claims to the elected product are found allowable, an otherwise proper restriction requirement between product claims and process claims may be maintained. Withdrawn process claims that are not commensurate in scope with an allowable product claim will not be rejoined. See MPEP § 821.04(b). Additionally, in order to retain the right to rejoinder in accordance with the above policy, applicant is advised that the process claims should be amended during prosecution to require the limitations of the product claims. Failure to do so may result in a loss of the right to rejoinder. Further, note that the prohibition against double patenting rejections of 35 U.S.C. 121 does not apply where the restriction requirement is withdrawn by the examiner before the patent issues. See MPEP § 804.01.
